Hello everyone,

Thank you so much for your presence here. Today I will be presenting a very important topic which is divided into three sections:

- Great minds talk about ideas
- Average minds talk about work
- Small minds talk about other people

I will be describing each section in short detail. Some points are my own and some points are from general life experiences.

Great Minds Talk About Ideas: Great minds love to discover new ideas and they continue their efforts until they succeed in their goals. Great minds never give up even if they fail and they learn positive lessons from their mistakes and failures. Great minds always think of innovative ideas and they have great time management skills. Great minds never waste their time and they focus on new challenges.

Average Minds Talk About Work: Average minds are busy focusing on their daily and family responsibilities. Average minds love to discover things which have already happened, and they depend on others. Average minds tend to point out problems without looking for solutions and they are afraid of failure even before trying to accomplish something.

Small Minds Talk About Other People: Small minds love to talk about other people, and they waste their time without being productive. Small minds make minimal efforts to improve. Their conversations are filled with gossip. People with small minds live a relatively care free life because they are not keen on improving themselves or the community around them.

Last but not the least, we all are human and everyone has their lifestyle and no-body is perfect in this world. I will work hard to be counted among Great Minds.

In conclusion, let us note that as we approach difficult times, it will be harder to succeed. Please take your time and consider carefully before making decisions so that you are prepared for every situation in the years ahead.

Thank you and have a nice day.
